From Spain to Russia, and from Ottoman Turkey to Bismarck's Prussia, this book explores 15 years that transformed European naval warfare. When the Gloire slid down the Toulon slipway in 1859, it changed sea power forever. With this ship, the world's first oceangoing ironclad, France had a warship that could sink any other, and which was proof against the guns of any wooden ship afloat.

She was the world's first seagoing ironclad--a warship built from wood, but whose hull was clad in a protective layer of iron plate. While history best remembers the ironclads of the American Civil War, these warships were mere toys compared to the iron-plated leviathans in contemporary European navies.

Book 269 in the Osprey New Vanguard series tackles the development of the steel-hull, steam powered warships of 1860-75. There's a brief element (it is only 16 years after all) on the history and development of the ironclad, the highlight of which is the annotated, cut-away diagram of the French vessel, the Gloire.

Book review: European Ironclads 1860-75 - Militaria History

European Ironclads 1860-75 ... Instantly, an arms race began between the great navies of Europe - first to build their own ironclads, and then to surpass each other's technology and designs. As both armour and gun technology rapidly improved, naval architects found new ways to mount and protect guns. The ram briefly came back into fashion ...
